TOM JEFFRIES A SUICIDE; ATTEMPTED TO MURDER HIS WIFE.

Well Known Attorney and Former School Principal While Temporarily Insane Shoots Himself Through Head.

FIRE TWICE AT MRS. JEFFRIES.

No One In Home at Bridgeport When Tragedy Happened—Clothing of Mrs. Jeffries Prevented Bullets of Small Calibre Revolver from Taking Effect.

BRONSVILLE, Apr. 8.—(Special.)—Thomas A. Jeffries, a member of the Fayette county bar, and for many years a prominent school teacher in Fayette county, attempted to kill his wife and then shot himself through the head, dying instantly at his home in Bridgeport last evening. Jeffries shot twice at his wife with a 22 calibre pistol and then turned the weapon on himself. Neither one of the bullets injured Mrs. Jeffries owing to the small calibre of the pistol. The shots did not penetrate altogether through her clothing. No one was in the house at the time of the tragedy except Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries were sitting in the parlor of their home when without an examination of any sort suddenly arose and pulling a small 22-calibre revolver from his pocket leveled the gun at his wife and discharged it twice. The first bullet went wild, but the second lodged in her clothing. Thinking he had either killed or wounded her he placed the barrel of the revolver behind his right ear and pulled the trigger. The bullet entered at this part of the skull and plowed into the brain and is supposed to have lodged there.

The screams of Mrs. Jeffries attracted her and Dr. Smith was summoned. An examination of Mrs. Jeffries showed that her life had been saved by a silk dress she wore, as the bullet had lodged in the folds of this and had not penetrated her person at all. The doctor then turned his attention to Mr. Jeffries, but soon saw that the wounded man was beyond medical help and he died within half an hour from the time he had performed the act.

A peculiar fact about the tragedy was when he shot himself Mr. Jeffries was standing near a lounge and when he fell his body dropped on it in a naturally reclining position.

Mr. Jeffries, it is alleged, had been drinking on Saturday. It is thought that this in some manner was the cause of the mania which seized him last evening and which only ended with his death. His domestic life was an ideal one and his business was supposed to be in the best of shape.

He has lived in Bridgeport since 1902 and served one term as Burgess of that borough within a year after he moved there. He was a member of the Fayette County Bar, having been admitted about one year ago.

Thomas A. Jeffries was born at Seaside August 5, 1868, and was a son of Squire Jeffries of New Salem. He was educated at the New Salem public schools and at Waynesburg College. After graduating from Waynesburg College he accepted the position of Principal of the New Salem schools, serving two years there. He then went to Martinsburg where he was the head of the schools for two years. Leaving Martinsburg he went to Fayette City, and for four years was the Principal of the schools there. He then removed to Bellevue where he stayed two years in a similar position.

In 1902 he moved to Bridgeport and purchased the real estate and insurance business of Prof. E. E. Porter, who was a former County Superintendent. In 1893 he wedded Miss Goodwin of Waynesburg, and four children were born of this union, the oldest being a child of about 12 years.

He was a man of exceptional ability and was an active worker in the interests of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, of which he was a member.

ROOT'S RESIGNATION.

Report He Will Leave Cabinet Is Not Sustained at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 8.—The report that Secretary of State Root is about to resign from the Cabinet on account of alleged differences with the President is not substantiated here. It is known Secretary Root is keenly interested in the work of the State Department and it has been said that only the most serious difference with his chief would lead him to abandon his post at this time.

No Raid in Klondike.

Owing to the Slavish meeting in New Haven Sunday there was no raid in the Klondike as was planned. County Detective Alex McBeth was in New Haven Sunday to see that no disorder occurred.

NEW YORK FIRE.

Fatality and Loss $1,000,000 This Morning.

NEW YORK, Apr. 8.—(Special.)—Foreman John Ryan was killed and Frederick J. O'Connell fatally hurt and eight firemen badly shocked during a fire which destroyed the power plant, car barns and 200 cars of the old Metropolitan Street Railway Company early today. The loss was nearly $1,000,000.

UP TO THE COURT

Is the Controversy Between the County Auditors and the Directors of the Poor.

The court will decide the controversy between the County Auditors and the Poor Directors and decide what salary the latter named officials shall receive. A "case stated" has been filed, the agreement between the counsel for both sides being that they are to abide by the decision when handed down. The Directors, set forth that during 1906 they drew $100 for their time and expenses of attending the meetings of the Board, making a total of $300.

There is no dispute as to the time put in the only question being as to whether or not they can legally draw pay for this sort of work. Crossland says he put in 32 days in this manner and his bill, including the cost of traveling, etc., is $125.38. Burnhart was out 42 days and his bill is $150.80. Love says he put in 14 days at a total cost of $163.63.

One of the matters for the court is to decide whether the Directors are entitled to actual expenses in connection with their official duties. In addition to the $3 a day. Another point to consider is whether the Directors are entitled to $5 a day for each day spent in looking after needy persons and attending the meetings of the Board. The last point is whether or not they are entitled to receive more in one year than $100, when they have been actually employed in outdoor relief work as a committee and after the allotted $100 has been consumed in service and actual expenses in attending the meetings of the Board at the County Home.

AN ELOPEMENT.

West Newton Couple Elude An Irate Grandfather and Constable.

WEST NEWTON, Apr. 8.—Corbett Schroyer, son of an undertaker, and Miss Ethel Donaldson, daughter of A. B. Donaldson, eloped from here Saturday night. Mr. Donaldson was away Saturday, but when it became known that the couple had disappeared about dark, driving out into the country, the girl's grandfather, Benjamin Obley, got the constable and some friends and started with teams in pursuit, expecting to be able to head them off at Bellevue.

After many miles of furious driving, however, the pursuers learned by telephone that the young couple had gone to Monongahela, whereupon they came back. Mr. Obley telephoned to Youngstown and other places where he thought the elopers might go, to stop their getting a license. Schroyer is 21 and Miss Donaldson 17 and it is said the young man was very strongly opposed by the girl's family.

SLOVAK MEETING WAS A BIG ONE.

Not the Least Disorder Marked Assemblage in New Haven.

OVER THOUSAND WERE PRESENT.

Conference of the Magyars Was Held at German Liederkreis—Burgess Markle and Father Gellhoff Presided at the New Haven Meeting.

Over 1,000 Slovaks from all over Fayette and Westmoreland counties attended the big meeting in their hall in New Haven yesterday. A number of men of the Magyar race held a conference at the German Liederkreis. There was not the least semblance of disorder. All the talk of trouble that might occur when the two meetings were held without foundation. The meeting in every sense of the word was an orderly one and no signs of trouble made an appearance at any time during the afternoon. While this large body of Slovaks was meeting in New Haven a number of Magyars were holding forth at German hall in Connellsville for the same purpose.

The meeting in New Haven in the afternoon was presided over by Rev. E. A. Gellhoff and the speakers were Rev. Poloczek, Burgess E. A. Markle of New Haven County Union, John Duggan of New Haven. Among the prominent people present were County Detective Alex. McBeth, J. H. Kamsky of Uniontown, John Steintz and Andy Knappe.

The contention between the Slovaks and the Magyars is one which has been brought over from Hungary. There the Magyars rule absolutely everything politically, religiously and socially. It is claimed, "there has been an attempt made by the Magyars to eliminate the Slovak language from the public schools and this has caused an uprising among all the Slovaks of the world over. By holding meetings here the Slovaks hope to enlist enough support to have this stopped and assure the longevity of their customs and traditions."

The New Haven and Connellsville authorities were prepared for any trouble between the two factions yesterday. All the members of the Connellsville department were kept at the police station and were prepared for any trouble.

The following resolutions were adopted in New Haven:

We protest against the persecution of the Slovak patriots.

We protest against the enforced and exclusive use of the Magyar language in the public and religious schools in Slovak communities.

We protest against the forced introduction by bishops, superintendents, priests and pastors, of the Magyar language at religious services in non-Magyar churches, and against teaching religion to children in other than their mother tongue.

We demand the enforcement of the Constitutional Laws and especially the law guaranteeing equal rights to the different nationalities of Hungary. We desire it to be known that we, citizens of the United States, are not rebelling against our mother country or against our former fellow citizens of Magyar nationality in Hungary, but we are protesting against atrocities of the Hungarian Government perpetrated on the Slovak people, and we sincerely hope that by these meetings we

BETTER SERVICE

Will Be Established by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for Eastern Freight Tonnage.

Through freight service between Pittsburgh and the East is to be improved by the construction of a cut-off to be built by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company. H. L. Bond, Vice President and General Attorney for the railroad company, says the work will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, and the real estate department has been instructed to purchase all the necessary property. The cut-off will extend from Gettysburg, on the Baltimore & Ohio main line, to Sewall, on the Philadelphia branch. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is also expected to use the new line when built, an understanding having been reached between the two corporations.

The route of the proposed new line is 10 miles long. After leaving Gettysburg it goes in a northeasterly direction through Rockville to a crossroad of the Western Maryland railroad which is owned by the Gould interests, thence passing under the Baltimore multiple by means of deep cuts and a tunnel to a crossing on the Northern Central railroad at Elder Station, thence passing north to Towson to a crossing of the Maryland & Pennsylvania railroad, near Oak high station. Connection is then made with the Philadelphia branch at or near Sewall station in Harford county.

It is only a short distance from Sewall to the Pennsylvania railroad, and the connection with the latter road will, in all probability, be built at this point. On the west the cut-off strikes the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio, and it is estimated that the Pennsylvania will construct a branch line from its Washington Division to Woodstock. The latter will probably begin at Magnolia station, about seven miles east of Washington, and extend in a straight line to Woodstock. The route enters Harford county, near Guilford, then passes through Columbia, four miles west of Elkton City, and thence a mile south of St. Charles College to Woodstock, from which point the Baltimore & Ohio main line will be used to Gettysburg.

Officials of the Baltimore & Ohio claim that additional facilities are needed to handle the increased traffic on the main line, and especially between this city and the East. Despite the fact that the Baltimore & Ohio some time ago announced that compensation for improvements would be made this year, Vice President Bond says the proposed cut-off at Baltimore will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. In addition to this the company is about ready to begin work on the construction of a new line between Johnstown and Somerset, and it is also understood that the company intends to make some improvements along the main line by eliminating the dangerous Sandpunch tunnel, plans for which were announced some months ago.

THAW TRIAL ENDING.

Twelfth and Last Week Begun in Famous Case This Morning.

EVELYN WILL TESTIFY AGAIN.

It is Expected That Her Presence Will Arouse the Jury's Interest Once More—Report of Lunacy Commission is Confirmed.

Publishers' Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Apr. 8.—The twelfth week of the trial of Harry K. Thaw for killing Stanford White began today with every prospect of final completion within a few days. It is expected that Evelyn will be the last witness for her husband. She will make a firm denial of the Hummel affidavit and her presence will once again arouse the jury's sympathy for Thaw. A new plan of defense indicates all of today will be occupied in hearing witnesses. Judge DeLoach's argument will probably begin tomorrow. Jerome will have Wednesday. Justice Fitzgerald will change the jury Wednesday evening or Thursday morning.

Justice Fitzgerald this morning confirmed the report of the Thaw Lunacy Commission on finding Thaw sane and directed that his trial should proceed. Dr. Hamilton was the first witness called.

Shortly before the jurors were brought into court this morning for a resumption of the Thaw trial District Attorney Jerome made a formal and impressive appeal to court, asking Justice Fitzgerald not to confirm the report of the Lunacy Commission which had found Thaw sane and capable of directing his own defense.

"In view of the finding of the Lunacy Commission, I can only accept," said Justice Fitzgerald, in answer to Jerome, "The trial will resume." The jurors were brought in and after a delay of nearly three weeks since Jerome made the speech in which he declared he had no right to be trying Thaw because the latter was insane, the trial was resumed. Dr. Hamilton was called, and Jerome's animated objections to the line of questioning made futile efforts of the defense to have the witness say he considered Thaw sane at the time he shot White, and he was withdrawn. Judge DeLoach conferred with his colleagues and then announced, "The defense rests." Justice Fitzgerald then intervened to declare he wished the testimony to cease. There was some discussion between the attorneys and a recess was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

BREWERY STRIKE.

Men Are Still Out and Managers Are Firm in Their Respective Positions.

The strike of the brewery workers is still on. On Saturday evening it was thought that a settlement was in sight. Little progress, however, has been made in the past 24 hours. The men are still standing firm for their demands while the managers are just as firm in their position.

It is possible that a conference will be held in Pittsburgh this afternoon and that something will be accomplished.

A MOUNTAIN STORM GALE ON SUNDAY AND LAST NIGHT.

Blow Was Continuous for Nearly 24 Hours and Did Some Damage Throughout the Country Districts.

BIG RENTAL.

McKeesport Man Takes Lease on S. E. Frock's Property in Uniontown. S. E. Frock and S. M. Hagar, who recently bought the property in Uniontown on East Main street adjoining the undertaking establishment of J. Harry Johnston, have entered into an agreement with Joseph H. Rubin of McKeesport whereby the latter has leased the property for five years from April 1, 1907, for a total rental of $12,500.

WATER MUDDY.

Change From Old to New Line Makes It Frequently Necessary to Stop the Pumps.

For the past several days, the water of the Connellsville Water Company has been exceptionally muddy and several people have been bothered on wash day on this account. It is even said that many good housewives have been compelled to postpone this weekly event on account of the liquid fluid being below the standard. Several people have stopped drinking water because it is so muddy. They are taking pop, and something stronger at times.

The reason assigned is the fact that the Connellsville Water Company has built a new pipe line and in changing from one line to another it is necessary to frequently stop the pumps. The water that then gets in is not properly filtered. Within a few days the fluid will be as clear and pure as ever.

LICENSE DECISIONS.

All Or a Part of Them Will Be Handled Down Tomorrow Morning by Judges Reppert and Umbel.

It was announced by the court at Uniontown this morning that the decisions in license court will be handed down tomorrow morning. All of the hotel men of the country who have made application will be on hand. The decisions may not all be announced, but the majority of them will be. These will include the applications for brewers and distillers. It is likely that the court will have some remarks to say before the decisions are announced.

MRS. HANNAH HARBAUGH.

Wife of Joseph Harbaugh Died This Morning.

Mrs. Hannah Gertrude Harbaugh, aged 37 years and 11 months, wife of Joseph M. Harbaugh, died this morning at the family residence, Arch street and Gibson avenue. A complication of diseases was the cause of her death. Funeral Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late residence, in the funeral home of J. H. Reppert.

Deceased was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Trump, well known residents of South Connellsville. She was born at South Connellsville, residing there up until the time of her death. She is survived by her husband and three children, Dorothy, Margaret and Joseph. Her parents and the following brothers and sisters also survive: J. N. and Jacob Trump of Connellsville; Mrs. Emma Hartman and Miss Harriet Trump of South Connellsville.

NEW UNION.

The Restaurant Employees and Hotel Help Form an Organization to Protect Their Interests.

Restaurant and hotel employees yesterday formed a new union of the Restaurant and Hotel Employees' International Association. Samuel Proctor was elected President; Ronald Whitehead, Vice President; F. C. Wilgus, Secretary, and A. T. Morgan, Treasurer.

There were fifteen charter members admitted yesterday and the members expect to get, if the employees of the hotels and restaurants to join. At a future meeting of the local a scale will be formulated and presented to the employers. It is likely that the price of help will be materially increased for the hotel and restaurant men.

Mother Goose Entertainment.

The Sunday school of the Christian Church will give a Mother Goose entertainment Friday evening in the church on South Pittsburgh street.

SOME WINDOWS SHATTERED

And Pedestrians Had Much Difficulty in Making Their Way Along the Streets—The Church Crows Were Much Inconvenienced.

The worst wind storm known here in many years prevailed for over 24 hours, starting at midnight Saturday, and continuing until early this morning. There was but a short interval during which it rained, when the gale let up. The damage done was considerable, although in no one place did it amount to much. Windows were blown out and shingles, slate roofing and other parts of buildings carried away by the storm.

Early Sunday morning the gale began to blow and it continued with unabated fury. Windows rattled, doors slammed and everything was in an uproar throughout the night. Those who attended church either Sunday morning or evening had a hard time to prevent being blown away. The South Side, just at the foot of the hills, was the center of the storm and at Pittsburgh and Green streets it seemed to be at its worst. Pedestrians, especially women, had a hard time navigating during the day.

The big plate glass window at the millinery store of Miss Dorothy Regar on South Pittsburgh street was blown in and some costly hats were badly damaged. The door at the entrance of the house house under City Hall was blown off its hinges and carried away.

"Windows, panes, shingles and slate roofing were blown away and collectively the storm did much damage. Although fierce gales have been known here, seldom is it that one has blown for so long a time with such short intermissions."

IN POLICE COURT.

Coppers Save a Man From Horrible Death on Railroad—Several Drunks Are Sentenced.

Officers Harry McCormick and Geo. Francis were life-savers Saturday night and pulled James Jackson off the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad along Water street, just a few minutes before train No. 97 came howling along. James was taking a nice nap on the rails, the result of an overindulgence in alcoholic spirits. In police court Sunday morning Mr. Jackson was given 48 hours in the bastle by Burgess Solson.

Benjamin Cubbage, a gentleman of town, was arrested by Officer DeLoach for using profane language on the streets. Detempe says that Cubbage was very profane. Burgess Solson gave him 72 hours.

Stafford Hoskin of town pushed a woman off the pavement Saturday night and got pinched as a consequence. He got 72 hours for the offense.

Michael Glenn and John Fredo got 15 hours each for being drunk.

A $2,000,000 BRIDE.

Miss Schwab Will Be Handsomely Remembered By Brother.

JOHNSTOWN, April 8.—(Special.) The marriage of Miss Gertrude Schwab, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schwab of Loreto, to David Barry of this city, will take place in St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church at Loreto, Wednesday morning of next week and will be a comparatively quiet affair, the guests being limited to the immediate members of the two families. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Father John B. Barry of Pittsburgh, a brother of the groom, and the attendants will be Miss McCormick of Cleveland, as bridesmaid and Dr. P. A. McAnany of this city as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry will spend a honeymoon of two weeks in the east, and upon their return will be at home at 245 Main street, Johnstown. It is reported Miss Schwab's brother will settle $2,000,000 upon her as a wedding present.

Bright Paragraphs From the 'Big Somerset County Borough.

ROCKWOOD, Apr. 5.—The Commencement exercises of the 1907 graduating class of the Rockwood High School was an immense success. The exercises were witnessed by the largest audience in the history of Vol-lunteer, and the people showed their appreciation by the applause and the congratulations bestowed on the members of the class. Music was furnished by the band of Casselman,

Professor Harrah's home town. When the curtain rose, the class was seated in a semi-circle across the stage, behind whom were seated the directors and several of the teachers. To the right were seated H. E. Miller, President of the School Board, Hon. E. D.

Miller, Rev. G. A. Sparks and Prof.

M. A. Harrah, Principal. The program was immediately carried out. Invocation was made by Rev. G. A. Sparks.

Then followed the salutatory address by Ed. D. Miller, a piano solo by Zola

Newman, the Class History by Miss

Florence Kay, a recitation by little

Iva Koonz, not a member of the class.

Then came an oration, "Choice of Books," by Ross Shumaker, followed by a class song which the entire class participated. Miss Zola Newman presiding at the piano; the Class

Prophecy, by Miss Zola Newman; the

Valedictory, by Howard Day; a mandolin duet, by Professors Miller and Paul. H. E. Miller followed with a short address in which he paid a high tribute to Prof. F. A. Harrah, and after a few words to the class he presented to them their diploma, which the class, seated on the stage, received with much applause. The curtain then was lowered and the exercises were at an end. While the members of the class were preparing for the presentation of their play, the audience was entertained by a few selections of vocal music by Prof. J. S.

Pyle, E. B. Bach and W. D. Miller, and W. S. Werner, E. E. Duff, E. R.

Miller and E. H. Werner. After an intermission of 15 minutes the curtain was drawn for the first act of "Uncle

Josh," a rural comedy of four acts, in which all the members of the class had important parts. That the audience was perfectly delighted was clearly seen by the thunderous applause at the end of each act. The program was completed by the singing of "The Old Gray Mare" by the class. Professor

Harrah deserves much credit for the excellent service he has given to the schools during the past term, and he can be certain of re-election should he again apply for the Principalship of the Rockwood public schools.

TWO KINDS OF RAILROAD WRECKERS.

The recent persistent attempts to wreck railroad trains have fortunately not been attended by serious loss of life, but that has not been the fault of the train-wreckers, who have received the just condemnation of the press and the public. Nothing too severe can be said of men who would maim and slay the innocent for the mere purpose of petty plunder.

There is another class of railroad wreckers who have been operating in a different manner, but on a more extensive if not so murderous a scale. They have not conspired to wreck trains, but to wreck railroads. Their object is attained by more peaceful methods: if does not involve bloodshed or personal injury; but the purpose is identical save only in classification. The train-wrecker's aim is petty theft; the railroad-wrecker's plan is wholesale plunder. One hopes to gain a few hundreds; the other expects millions. One is a common criminal; the other a high financier.

Hitherto the latter has been admired for his feats of manipulation, but it has at last dawned upon the minds of men that he is after all only an uncommon thief, and the public demands that his practices be stopped and himself punished. The Governor and Attorney General of Illinois are just now engaged in the work of bringing to justice and an accounting Wreckers, Harman, Gould, Stillman and Schiff, who are said to have put some $24,000,000 in their pockets as a result of the Chicago & Alton railroad's manipulation. Whether they are brought to justice or not, it is evident that the public temper will no longer submit to such wholesale watering of railroad and industrial stocks and the taxing of the people to pay dividends thereon. Roosevelt railway regulation looks like interference with the rights of vested capital, but it is becoming apparent that it is really interference against the oppressions by entrenched wealth and power of the defenseless people.

Greensburg has a Dark ball player. He will show up well in the dazzling light of the diamond.

The Scottsdale Methodists have abandoned the new patent high-finance method of debt-raising on the bond plan and have gone back to the good old-fashioned method of private cash contributions.

Oliver Bird is not a bird after all. He's a bug and a bad bug, at that. He's a fire-bug.

Crover Cleveland thinks life insurance Presidents should be liberally paid. Crover's ideas of economical administration seems to be confined to the government of the nation.

Having accumulated another bunch of money for the munition chest, General Jacob Sechler Coxey threatens to take the war-path again.

Wayside Fancies.
The beauty of everything but woman depends upon the point of view. The exception of woman is proved in the common practice of courting in the dark.

An old philosopher says beauty and wisdom are rarely conjoined. The reason is, I suppose, that wisdom is too wise to be a good calclmner.

WILLIE'S EXCUSE.
"Please excuse Willie," wrote Willie's mother to his teacher. "He fell against a wire fence and tore his knickerbockers. By doing the same you will oblige—His Mother!"

THE WAGON.

The January-first start of the water wagon always reminds me of a street car that leaves the city just as the waters close for the night. The car is packed! People hang onto the straps and crowd onto the platforms. The car starts amid a scene of joyousness and good cheer, but it no sooner crosses the bridge and gets out into the residence district, than people begin to crawl off. By and by there is room for everyone to have a seat. A little later the remaining passengers select the best seats and all ride facing forward. One by one the people depart, and by the time the car rattles into the barn there isn't a soul aboard except the conductor, the motorman and a fellow who has forgotten his pledge and gone to sleep in the front corner. At the start the glad chorus was "Little Drops of Water." When they awaken the lone passenger and start him on his wobbly way, a hiccupping refrain drifts backward in the night: "We'll (hic) never (hic) mish-mish (hic) wash water (hic) when th' (hic) water runs dry! Hrray!"

The small boy's definition of a gentleman is, "A grown-up man who minded his mother until he was twenty-one. He small boy is right, as usual."

The small boy who steals mother's jam and then smears the cat's whiskers with the scrapings, will grow up to be a great trust magnate.

Some women are much like cats. Stroke their fur the right way and they purr; cross them and they will scratch you.

A little five-year-old friend of mine wanted to take his kitten to pieces to see from whence the purr came.

Many a little kitten, sought as lost, merely has grown into a cat!

ROMANCE IN SUNNY ITALY TO CULMINATE IN A WEDDING.

Ricciardo DeAngelis, Clerk in P. Bufano's Foreign Bank, Goes Back to Native Country to Claim Bride.

From The Sunday Courier.

A romance, started in Sunny Italy, more than four years ago, will culminate in a brilliant Italian wedding in the beautiful city of Naples on Thursday, April 11, when Ricciardo DeAngelis, a clerk in Bufano's foreign bank, will wed Miss Angela Carucci. Invitations were received by Connellville friends of the young man yesterday announcing the fact that he would be married and cordially inviting them to be present at the nuptial event. The bride is a daughter of Benedetto and Teresa Consolmi Carucci, a prominent Italian family of Naples. One of the peculiar features of the invitation is the fact that it is made jointly on the part of both families. On one side of the folder the parents of the bride request the guests' attendance and on the other the parents of the groom make the same announcement in regard to their son.

Mr. De Angelis came to America about four years ago, taking employment with Mr. Bufano. He had only seen his bride but a few times before that and was never allowed to call on her. In Italy the customs are far different than in America. A youth must first show some affection for the young lady before he is accorded the privilege of calling and then never calls alone. After the young man's affection becomes pronounced the families then fix up the marriage arrangement. Mr. De Angelis sailed for America before the affair was well along, but some tender mislives passed over the ocean between the couple which brought about the wedding that is to occur next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. De Angelis will sail for America about April 30 after spending a short time visiting relatives in Italy. They expect to land in America about May 4, and will make their home at 401 Baldwin avenue, where they will go to housekeeping upon their arrival here.

THOUSANDS WILL BE SPENT TO REJUVENATE SOISSON PARK.

Charles Gramlich of New York, Backed by Cochran's of Dawson, Will Make it a Great Amusement Resort,

MANY NEW FEATURES PLANNED

Expected That Five Year Lease on Grounds Will Be Signed Tomorrow. If Plans Are Carried Out Street Car Lines Will Run Direct Into Park.

From The Sunday Courier.

If present plans are materialized Soisson Park will become one of the finest pleasure resorts in this section of the country. It is expected that a five-year lease on the property will be signed with the West Penn Railway Company tomorrow. The Cochran's of Dawson are interested in the project financially, and it is said that a big sum of money will be invested there this summer. Charles Gramlich of New York has been here for the past month looking over the grounds and a proposition has been made and accepted by the West Penn Railway. Mr. Gramlich has had considerable experience in this line of business, having been located at Coney Island, New York, for three years. Last summer he managed the Backus Park Theatre in Baltimore.

The principal feature of the rejuvenated park will be a fine $15,000 theatre to seat 1,200 persons. When this is completed, the best vaudeville shows available will be engaged. Some fine attractions for this theatre are already in view.

A novel idea will be a "shoot the chutes," to be erected at the pond. This is something that has not been tried about this section, but it is extremely popular elsewhere. A circle swing, carousel, figure-eight roller coaster, miniature railway and dancing pavilion will complete the attractions. A high electric tower, which may be seen for miles around, will also be erected.

If these plans are carried out, and the contract with the company provides that they shall be, the West Penn will improve the approaches to the park by running the street cars directly into the grounds. The greatest objection to Soisson Park at present is the long walk to reach it. Until the line is extended to the grounds Manager Gramlich will construct a fine boulevard from the present street car station. This will be brilliantly lighted.

The miniature railway will be operated by Speck Brothers, middle-aged, who are only 20 inches tall. They will fit well in the engines and cars and will prove a good drawing card. When seen last night Manager Gramlich expressed himself as being confident that the proposition will prove a good one.

"I am sure," he said, "that a park of this nature will pay. I also believe the people of the vicinity want some thing of the kind. We will begin work as soon as the lease for the grounds is signed and within a few months will have the park ready for operation. We expect to have everything in full swing by the time the hot weather sets in. Everything will be first-class and up to date. I have been here for a month looking over the ground and have everything planned. After we get the big things well under way we will turn our attention to the minor attractions. The theatre will be managed by ourselves, but the other attractions will be sublet. The shoot the chutes are something new in this neighborhood, but they will be winners."

In the Lobbies and on 6th Streets.

From The Sunday Courier.

John Husband of Mt. Pleasant was a business visitor to Connellville yesterday. He was conferring with several men who are interested in West Virginia coal lands regarding the development of several tracts.

Spooking of robins the other day, E. L. Marietta said that it is not an unusual occurrence for these birds to remain all winter in and about the Indian Creek valley, where they can be found at all seasons of the year. The general opinion is that no robins ever remain North over winter.

Going one ahead of that, Philr Pendleton tells that down in "Old Virginia" the natives eat robin pies and greatly enjoy the dish. They also eat blackbird pies.

D. F. Girard has a new horse. He just got it yesterday afternoon and exhibited it along the streets. Jim McGloth, who was among the first to see it, wanted to match John Smith against him yesterday. There's a keen rivalry between Dave and Jim over horses, and McGloth says Girard imported his new horse especially to make him feel bad. He says he doesn't feel that way, however. Mr. Girard purchased his horse from the Fitzsimmons sales stables in Pittsburg. His name is Dan J., and he is a four year old. He was sired by Jay Bird, who was an inbred racer on the Dawson track. He attracts attention along the streets from the fact that he is a red roan.

James S. Amend, formerly partner with A. A. Straub in the proprietorship of the Smith House, and later proprietor of the Exchange Hotel at Uniontown, surprised his many friends yesterday afternoon by telephoning from his old home at Derry, West moreland county. After the sale of the Exchange Hotel Mr. Amend went on a trip to Cuba and then took a notion to go across the "pond." He roamed about through historic London and then went to Gay Paris, where he saw all the sights that were to be seen. He visited many of the important places on the Continent and when he got tired of it hurriedly packed up and came back to dear old Pennsylvania. Mr. Amend has several business propositions that he will take up after settling down in this region again.

Major B. W. Atkinson, U. S. A., who was here Thursday evening to inspect the Tenth Regiment band, is an old newspaper man who still does quite a little special stuff. He is a man of especially pleasing personality. Having been actively engaged as a reporter some 20 years ago, he pretends to the time he entered the army. Major Atkinson always gives newspaper men a cordial reception.

"I have just returned to Washington from the Philippines," he told a representative of The Courier, "and have not had time to get settled there yet. I had no more than landed in the Capital City before I was detailed on inspection duty."

Major Atkinson is stationed at Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C., an old-fashioned place just outside the navy yard. He is of the Fourth Infantry.

A good story is going the rounds on a certain Bell telephone operator who has a peculiar habit of her own in answering a call. This charming young lady insists that the number be repeated three times on all occasions. Subscribers on her board have noticed her falling. The other day Dr. L. S. Hyatt, who has been a victim of this three number practice, tried to see whether she has the numbers repeated from force of habit or because she doesn't understand.

Going to the phone he asked for a number in Slavic. Her usual reply of "Hello" drifted back, but no note of surprise was manifest.

The second time the doctor put the number in German, but the voice didn't change a bit. When he asked the third time in English he got the reply he was after. Dr. Hyatt now thinks he will merely grin and save breath the first two times he calls a party.

RED FEATHER.

Packed House Assured Judging From Advance Sale Which Opened at Huston's Today.

Now for a real comic opera with a score of superior worth, artists who can sing, and a conductor to bring out the beauties of the composition. For libretto, a story that is tongue and moving consideration has been supplied by the author. It is "Red Feather," the gorgeous Ziegfeld Opera Company production of Reginald De Koven, and Charles Klein's romantic opera that will be the attraction at the Colonial Theatre Wednesday, April 12. The company that Manager Joseph M. Galt has organized with Cherish Simpson at the head, numbers 75 people.

The production is said to be the most lavishly and the most stupendous. The Comanches (Hill) Van Dusen, the story goes, is engaged in a plot to place a pretender upon the throne of Romania. The pretender needs funds and the lady to aid him takes to the road in male attire and becomes the redoubtable highwayman, Red Feather. The capt. in of the royal guards, who is the lady's lover, is compelled by the Crown Prince also in love with the Countess, to attempt the capture of Red Feather not knowing the connection between the lady, the girl and his sweetheart. In the end the captain captures Red Feather and answers for the future good behavior of the master of the throne, the Countess. At the same time the pretender wins the throne, the Crown Prince, who is the villain of the tale, is killed and all ends happily. A feature of the local engagement will be an augmented orchestra. The seat sale opened this morning at Huston's drug store and as a packed house is assured for this attraction, Colonial patrons will do well by getting seats early.

LOT SALE.

Auction and Private Sales at Blainesburg.

On Thursday, April 12, we will conduct another big sale in the new town, Blainesburg, opposite Brownsville, 52 miles south of Pittsburg. This is the function of a lot of five valuable tracts, having 32 passenger trains daily and the greatest freight tonnage in the country, excepting only Pittsburg.

The development of new coal plants, new coal mines, the construction of new electric lines, new railroads, new bridges and a new river lock on the Monongahela at this locality, make it the best place in the country for investors, mechanics, business men, professional men and for the investment of money in real estate. Blainesburg is not yet one year old, but more than 100 new houses have been built here, and more than ever will be built this summer. Hundreds of lots have been sold that have increased more than 100 per cent in value in less than twelve months.

This year will see real estate values multiply again in value and a few years will cause these lots to become worth as much per foot as we now ask for a lot.

We are now selling many lots daily. In Blainesburg for from three to five times the price that adjoining lots brought less than a year ago.

Don't fail to come to this sale and buy one or more of these lots. Other attractions will consist of music by the Tenth Regiment, N. G. P. Band of Connellville.

NEW PROGRAM

Will Be Put on at the Family Theatre This Evening.

An entire change of people and program will be seen at the new vaudeville theatre tonight on Pittsburg street. Phil and Charlie Russell in a Dutch comedy act lead the bill. Mr. Russell lays claim to be one of the funniest Dutchmen in the business, and is ably supported by his clever wife. Aside from their Dutch act they introduce a small family of canines who are a whole show in themselves. Mr. Hanvey will sing, by the request of a number of lovers of good singing, the "Holy City," and for an encore will sing for the first time ever heard in this city the beautiful new ballad, "When the Violets Whisper Marie."

Professor Talkington is also on the bill. The nature of his act still remains a mystery. Business is steadily improving, especially the attendance of ladies and children, as was noticed by the audience at Saturday matinee. A special bargain matinee will be given every Saturday and the performance at night is continued from 7:45 till 10:30.

CLEARING THE DECKS

Legislators Are Working With Might and Vim to Clean Up Calendar.

LOAN ASSOCIATIONS RESTRICTED

Big Fellows Fear Business Will Be Disorganized Should Clarence Bill Become Law—Scarlet's Illness Hinders Capitol Investigation.

Harrisburg, April 2.—Only by hard work will the Pennsylvania legislature be able to clear its calendar and adjourn finally on May 16, the date fixed by the house. Everybody admits it is impossible to get away May 2, the time fixed by the senate, and it is thought that body will eventually concur in the house resolution. The house calendar is crowded with enough bills to keep its members busy for two weeks, to say nothing of the multitude of bills still in committee.

None of the numerous bills for the state's private charities has been brought out of the house appropriations committee, which will give no more hearings after this week. Chairman Sheatz is working on a schedule of the bills which have been disposed of by the committee and it is expected that the first batch of these bills will be reported this week. The committee will give a hearing on Wednesday on the Cochran bill providing a monthly pension of $5 to $10 for old soldiers, according to their term of service.

Capitol Park Bill in Doubt.

Chairman Sheatz and other members of the committee will make an inspection on Wednesday of the territory which it is proposed to annex under the terms of the Fox park extension bill. This measure carries an appropriation of $1,600,000, and its friends believe that if the committee will bring it out on the floor of the house it can be passed. The bill has passed the senate just as it did two years ago, when it was held up by the house appropriations committee, and its advocates are now making a systematic canvass of the house.

The house will take up for second reading tomorrow the Clarence bill restricting the powers of building and loan associations, except so far as it relates to the borrowing of money. This bill provides that these associations shall do business only in one county, so far as practicable; that they must meet at stated periods to transact their business; forbids the receiving of dues for more than one year in advance, and also forbids the issuance of full-paid stock.

There is much opposition to the bill, especially among the larger associations, whose business it would disorganize if it should become a law. Under the existing law all building and loan associations operating in Pennsylvania are under control and supervision of the state banking department. The opponents of the bill have made a canvass of the house and claim to have enough votes pledged for its defeat.

McCord Bill Coming Up Tonight.

The nominations of the three judges of the newly-created common pleas court of Allegheny county will probably be reported from the senate judiciary committee and confirmed tonight. This committee is also expected to report at the same time the McCord bill which has already passed the house, allowing voters to express their choice for United States senator at the primary elections. The advocates of the bill claim to have enough votes pledged to report it out of committee and that at least 31 of the 50 senators will vote for it on final passage.

Because of the illness of James Scarlet, attorney for the capital investigation commission, the public hearings may be postponed for a week. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed for tomorrow and if Mr. Scarlet is able the commission will resume its hearings at that time.

Walter Wellman, journalist and Arctic explorer, was born at Mentor, O., on November 3, 1858. He early showed a liking for newspaper work, and when only 11 years of age he established a weekly paper at Sutton, N. H. He married in 1878 Miss Laura McGinn, Mr. Wellman made remarkable progress in the newspaper business and when only 21 years of age he founded the Cincinnati Evening Post. Mr. Wellman in 1894 first showed his liking for Polar exploration and made an eminently successful trip to the Arctic regions. He returned to Franz Josef Land in 1898 and remained there nearly a year, bringing back much new information as to this then almost unknown Polar territory. Mr. Wellman was President of the National Capital Press Club. His home is in Washington, where he has represented a number of the most important newspapers in the country.

OUR COAL RESOURCES

Geological Survey on Kittanning and Rural Valley Quadrangle.

EIGHT BIG SEAMS IN REGION.

It is Estimated That There Are 512,000,000 Tons of Run of Mine Coal in the Upper Freeport Seam in the Quadrangle.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 8.—A presentation of the economic geology of the Kittanning and Rural Valley quadrangles of Pennsylvania must necessarily be chiefly a discussion of its coal resources, since that area lies in the northern end of the great bituminous coal field of Eastern United States and coal is its most important source of mineral wealth. Such a discussion has recently been written by Charles Butts and published as Bulletin No. 379 of the United States Geological Survey.

After setting forth the geological structure and the stratigraphy of the region, Mr. Butts passes on to a discussion of its mineral resources, which include coal, petroleum and natural gas, clay and shale, iron ore, limestone, building stone and sand.

There are in all eight seams of coal in this region that reach minable thickness over areas greater or less extensive in the quadrangles. These are, in ascending order, the Brookvale, Craigville, Clarion, Lower Kittanning, Middle Kittanning, Upper Kittanning, Lower Freeport, Upper Freeport and Brush Creek seams. The first seven of these seams occur in the Allegheny formation, and the last is found in the Conemaugh formation. Of the eight seams, only two, the Lower Kittanning and the Upper Freeport, are generally workable. The Lower Freeport comes next in importance, followed by the Upper Kittanning. The remaining four, so far as known, are minable only in small areas and with the possible exception of the Brookvale coal along the Upper Mahoning creek, hardly rank as coals of commercial importance.

A valuable map showing the structure and economic geology of the area accompanies the report. On this map, the outcrop of a seam known or thought to be of minable thickness is shown by a full line, the outcrop of a seam not known to be minable but possibly so, is shown by broken lines. Where nothing is known of a seam, or it is known to be too thin to mine, its outcrop is not shown on the map. In most cases the mapping of the outcrop of coals between the Lower Kittanning and the Upper Freeport seams is based upon the blossom of these coals at a few points along the roads, and their value can be determined only by prospecting along these lines.

The description of the coals is given separately for each of seven drainage basins as follows: Buffalo creek, Glade run, Allegheny river with its smaller tributaries, Redbank creek, Mahoning creek, Pine creek and Cowanshannock creek. The position of a bank, prospect, or outcrop is indicated on the map by a cross, and the position of a mine by crossed hammer. By the use of corresponding numbers on the map and in the text of the report, it is possible to indicate exactly the place at which an observation was made on any of the coals.

A general index to the numbers is given on the margin of the map.

The delineation of the geologic structure of the region by means of contour lines drawn upon the top of the Vanport limestone, is believed to be one of the most valuable features of the map, since structure has an intimate relation to the accumulation of petroleum and natural gas and is as well an important condition affecting the mining of coal and other deposits. A knowledge of the structure therefore will enable the miner to open his mines at the most advantageous points and guide the well driller in locating his wells where there is the greatest prospect of finding gas or oil.

It is estimated that there are 512,000,000 tons of run-of-mine coal in the Upper Freeport seam in the quadrangle and 868,000,000 tons of Lower Kittanning coal, making a grand total of 1,380,000,000 tons in these two seams. To this must be added the coal available in other seams, which are so inconsistent in thickness that reliable estimates of the amount that they contain can not be made.

Comparatively little of the coal of these quadrangles has been taken out. Mining operations on a commercial scale have until recent years been Mahoning northward, where the Lower Kittanning has been worked. The conditions seem to be favorable, however, to mining in these quadrangles. All parts are easily accessible along the wide valleys of the Allegheny and the problem of transportation is a simple one. The coal seams are generally overlain by shale and underlain by clay, which are fairly easy to remove, and the shale makes a comparatively good roof. It is believed that in locating mines it will be found advantageous to consider the structure or lay of the rocks as it is delineated on the map.

Persons who will sit out a play or listen to an interesting conversation without coughing seem to be seized as soon as they compose themselves to hear a sermon with distressing irritation of the windpipe that can be relieved only by violent and continued coughing.—British Medical Journal.

THAW IS HAPPY.

Millionaire in Murderer's Row Confident of Freedom This Week.

New York, April 8.—A singing and whistling prisoner in murderer's row at the Tombs proclaims to all within hearing distance the frame of mind of Harry K. Thaw. The young millionaire defendant is counting the days that stand between him and freedom, so confident is he of being acquitted before the week is out.

In a statement which Clifford W. Hartridge gave out some doubt was expressed as to whether the defense would call any more witnesses today. But Mr. Hartridge is careful to express the opinion that no more testimony is needed for Thaw. It may be accepted as a fact that the defense will rest as soon as the report of the lunacy commission has been disposed of by the court.

Hartridge is bold enough to suggest that Jerome, to preserve his consistency, should ask the court to instruct the jury to acquit Thaw. This suggestion was made on the theory that Jerome believes Thaw to be insane, aside from his duty in the premises. It is not at all likely that the district attorney will adopt the suggestion. Rather will he laboriously sink his own personal views and strive with what convincing power he may be able to muster to convince the 12 jurors against his own personal conclusions to declare Thaw guilty.

"Mr. Jerome has been seeking the advice of lawyers and I know that he has frequently been in conference with Delancy Nicoll," said Mr. Hartridge. "Mr. Nicoll represents certain interests in the trial whose efforts have been to keep certain matters away from the public."

"Now I want to give you the inside history of my appearing before the lunacy commission. I waived my constitutional rights and told the commission to ask Thaw any question they saw fit, except that I told him not to answer any questions about the trial and the case."

"Well, one member of the commission did ask Thaw a question about the case and on my advice he declined to answer it. Then the commissioners sent for me and asked me if I would not withdraw my advice so as to allow Thaw to answer the question. I then told Thaw to answer any question that the members of the commission might ask, and I suppose that he did, but I do not know that he did, for I left the presence of the commission and was not present at the examination any more than Mr. Jerome was. It would be a cruel shame to have a trial now after all we have gone through."

THE COTTAGE.

It Should Be Without Sham Elegance and Elaboration.

There are cottages and cottages. Any modest, unpretentious house designed on strictly economical lines may be fitly called a cottage, and it is more satisfactory to regard one's own simple little abode as a well built, commodious cottage than as a small house of comparatively cheap construction and cramped dimensions. It is when given to the big swagging outside houses of the rich that the term "cottage" becomes a misnomer and an affectation. To the man of moderate means the very idea of building a cottage rather than a house carries with it a sense of making a home within his own simple little abode for a sham elegance and elaboration. The cottage which appeals the most to the man of moderate means is the one that is simple and unadorned. The cottage which appeals the most to the man of moderate means is the one that is simple and unadorned. The cottage which appeals the most to the man of moderate means is the one that is simple and unadorned.

AERIAL TELEGRAPHY.

First Attempted by Amontons in the Fifteenth Century.

One of the first systems of aerial telegraphy was attempted in the fifteenth century. The inventor, Amontons, at that time considered one of the cleverest scientists of the world. Yet you never hear the name nowadays in connection with that of Morse or Bell. However, Amontons developed a system of signal telegraphy so that a message could be sent from Paris to Rome in three hours. Those who assisted in the transmission of the message along the line were unable to tell the nature of the message.

Posts were placed from Paris across the Alps at consecutive points, where men were stationed with telescopes. Different signals, representing combinations of letters, were run up at each post. The man at the other end, seeing the signal, placed a similar one before his post, and so the message was carried to its destination. The key to the signal was known only to those who sent the messages in Paris and to the recipients a thousand miles away. Amontons was not encouraged in his work by the public, partly because of the time and disreputable efforts.—Philadelphia North American.

President Takes Up Complaints.

Washington, April 8.—The President has taken up the complaints against the commissary department on the isthmus of Panama, that have come to him as the result of recent visits of members of congress to that place. He has assured his callers that the allegations affecting graft in that department and other complaints shall be looked into promptly, and if conditions there are found to be as alleged they will be set right.

ALTON IS BANKRUPT.

Attorney General Stead Sums Up Consequences of Harriman's High Finances.

24 MILLIONS BOLDLY STOLEN

But Recovery of Any Part of This Amount by Defrauded Stockholders Is Scarcely Probable—Got Away With the Loot.

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—Attorney General Stead has handed Gov. Denen an opinion on the manipulations of the Chicago & Alton properties within the last few years by E. H. Harriman and some of his financial associates, including George J. Gould, James Stillman and Ferdinand Schiff. The opinion is given in response to a request communicated from Gov. Esch on March 22, soon after the return of Gov. Denen and Attorney General Stead from a conference with President Roosevelt at Washington, in which the attorney general was asked to advise what his conclusions are in the matter and what action, if any, is contemplated by the legal department of the state.

After setting out at some length the various manipulations to which the railroad corporations and properties forming the Alton system were subjected, Attorney General Stead concludes that there is not the least doubt that a civil remedy exists against the "financiers" who have wrecked this prosperous railroad company, and, at the expense of innocent stockholders and bondholders, have gathered themselves a harvest of millions of dollars.

Restitution Not Likely. Mr. Stead is doubtful, however, whether it is the province of the state of Illinois to enforce the remedy. The revocation of the company's charter, which, apparently would be the natural procedure on the part of the state, would bring most of the sufferings upon the innocent stockholders, Harriman and his friends having already unloaded a large part of their holdings.

Mr. Stead inclines to the belief that the remedy lies with the company itself, or in the event of its refusal to act, with some one or more of its stockholders. This conclusion, however, is not final, for the attorney general specifically states that if he should become satisfied upon further investigation that an effective remedy can be enforced by the state he will not hesitate to institute proceedings. No opinion is expressed as to whether the members of the Harriman syndicate are criminally liable under the statutes of Illinois.

Quotes Startling Figures. According to the figures set out in Mr. Stead's opinion, Harriman and his associates made a total profit of $21,648,600 out of their operations involving the Alton properties. As a result of this enormous profit to themselves, the railroad companies of the Alton system are thrown into bankruptcy. The indebtedness of the companies, as shown by the figures in Mr. Stead's opinion, has been increased a total of $80,646,218 since they fell into Harriman's hands. Of this amount only $22,500,000, according to Harriman's own testimony, says the attorney general, was incurred for improvements, betterments or extension of the roads. Says the attorney general:

"Over $57,000,000 of this indebtedness, or more than 70 per cent of the entire indebtedness created by this syndicate upon the properties of these several companies was not created in furtherance of any legitimate purpose for which a railroad company is or can be organized under the statutes of the state of Illinois."

THEODORE D. BUHL DEAD

Millionaire Steel Magnate Suddenly Summoned in New York.

New York, April 8.—Theodore D. Buhl, president of the Buhl Machine Iron works of Detroit, president of the Detroit National bank, and also of the firm of Paiko, Davis & Co., chemical and drug manufacturers, dropped dead on the street near the Waldorf Astoria hotel, where he had been a guest. Death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Buhl was one of a group of steel magnates, a multi-millionaire and prominent in banking circles in the middle west and the east. The body will be sent to Detroit for interment.

Mr. Buhl was 64 years of age. Accompanied by his wife and granddaughters and his brother-in-law, E. R. Walker, and the latter's wife, Mr. Buhl arrived in this city from Boston Saturday night. The Walkers registered at the Holland house and Mr. Buhl with his wife and granddaughter went to the Waldorf Astoria.

Following luncheon Mr. Buhl appeared in good health and spirits remained about the hotel for a couple of hours talking with business associates. Shortly after 3 o'clock he told Mrs. Buhl that he felt like taking a walk. Mr. Buhl left the hotel and started to walk in West 34th street. When in front of the Astor National bank he fell dead on the sidewalk.

Springfield, O., April 8.—J. I. Lowell, general manager of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railway, was taken suddenly ill at Detroit and brought into this city in a delirious condition. His special car was transferred to the Peoria division of the Big Four here and later left for Mr. Lowell's home in Chicago. The nature of the malady is not known.

MASS MEETING

Of Uniontown Folks to Discuss the Sunday Closing.

A big mass meeting of the citizens of Uniontown was held yesterday afternoon in the First Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. J. J. Hill, pastor of the church, introduced Judge E. H. Harp as the presiding officer. The judge was particularly felicitous in his characterization of the different speakers, referring good-humoredly to the particular tone of each.

The committee's report on the legal aspect of the situation was discussed by Attorney D. M. Hertzog. Attorney M. M. Cochran handled the subject "The Duty of the Citizens in the Present Crisis." His argument consisted of a sensible plea for conservative action. Prof. W. W. Finch of the Uniontown High School delivered an able address on "The Duty of Women in the Present Crisis." O. J. Sturges spoke on "The Duty of the Press in the Present Crisis." He dwelt upon the fact that the local newspapers were a unit in calling for a proper Sabbath observance, and that every public movement in its effort to be successful should enlist the sympathy and support of the press.

Why You Should Bank Here.

A bank is what its directors make it—its strength depends largely upon their experience, judgment and responsibility—its growth upon the time, thought and effort they devote to it. The directors of this bank are well-known business men of this city, large holders of the bank's stock, therefore deeply interested in its stability and progress. They keep in constant touch with its affairs by constant meetings. This is one feature to be considered when selecting a banking house.

A MAKER OF HISTORY

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

"If she comes back, shall you ever ask her to marry you?"

"I don't know, George. I'm poor, and I'm twelve years older than she is. I don't know."

There was another silence. Then the conversation drifted back once more to the one subject which was monopolizing the thoughts of both of them.

"I tell you what seems to me to be the most extraordinary part of the whole business," Duncombe said.

"First, the brother disappears. Then without a word to any one, the sister also rushes off to Paris and vanishes from the face of the earth after a series of extraordinary proceedings. One supposes naturally that if there have been a crime—there must have been a motive. What is it? You say that their banking account has been undisturbed?"

"It was last week. I should hear if any checks were presented."

"And the boy's letter of credit even has never been drawn upon?"

"Not that I have left Vienna."

"Then the motive cannot be robbery. Thank heaven," Duncombe added, with a little shudder, "that it was the boy who went first."

"Don't!"

A great winged insect came buzzing into the room. Duncombe struck viciously at it with the palm of his hand.

"Lord," he muttered, "what a fool I am! I've never been away from home before, and here I am just back from Paris in August, from turning night into day, from living just the sort of life I hate, and I'd give anything to be going back there tomorrow. I'm a haunted man, Andrew. I get up last night simply because I couldn't sleep and walked down as far as the back-porch. I seemed to see her face in all the shadowy corners, to see her moving toward me from among the trees. And I'm not an imaginative person, Andrew, and I've got no nerves. Look!"

He held out his hand, strong and firm and brown. It was as steady as a rock.

"I can't sleep," he continued. "I can't rest. Is there witchcraft in this thing, Andrew?"

Andrew Pelham laughed shortly. It was a laugh which had no kinship to mirth.

"And I," he said, "have seen her grow up. We were boy and girl together. I stole apples for her. I have watched her grow from girlhood into womanhood. I have known flesh and blood and you a cardboard image. I, too, am a strong man, and I am helpless. I am awake at night and I think it is as though the red flames of hell were curling up around me. George, if she has come to any evil, whether I am blind or whether I can see, I'll grope my way from country to country till my hand is upon the throat of the beast who has harmed her."

The man's voice shook with passion. Duncombe was cowed into silence. He had known Andrew Pelham always as a good natured, good hearted giant, beloved of children and animals, deeply religious, a man whose temper, if he possessed such a thing, was always strictly under control. Such an outburst as this was a revelation. Duncombe understood then how slight a thing his own suffering was.

"You shall not go alone, Andrew," he said softly. "But for the present we must wait. If any one can help us, Spenser will."

A servant came in with the whisky and glasses and silently arranged them upon the table. Duncombe rose and attended to his duties as host.

"Hello! They're stopping. I'd better go out."

"Can I get you anything further, sir?" the man asked.

"Nothing, thanks," Duncombe answered. "Tell the servants to go to bed. We will look up. Say when, Andrew."

Andrew took his glass mechanically. Out in the lane the silence of the summer night was suddenly broken by the regular tread of horses' feet and the rumbling of vehicles. Duncombe Hall was built like many of the old fashioned houses in the country, with its back to the road, and the window at which they were sitting looked out upon it. Duncombe leaned forward in his chair.

"Visitors by the last train going up to Runtun Place," he remarked. "Runtun has quite a large party for the first. Hello! They're stopping. I'd better go out."

He rose from his chair. The omnibus had stopped in the lane, and they could hear the voices of the occupants clearly through the soft darkness. Some one was apparently getting out and stumbled. A girl's soft laugh rang out distinctly above the man's exclamation. Duncombe was already stepping over the window sill, when he felt a clutch like iron upon his shoulder. He looked round in amazement. Andrew's face was transformed. He was struggling for words.

"Her voice!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "Am I dreaming, George? It was her voice!"

CHAPTER XIV.

THE door of the omnibus was opened as Duncombe stepped over the low wall into the road. A tall man in a long, light frock coat descended.

"Hello, Duncombe!" he exclaimed, holding out his hand. "I was coming in to see you for a moment."

"Good man!" Duncombe answered. "Bring your friends, won't you?"

He had seen the man hospitably, but Lord Runtun shook his head.

"I only wanted a word with you," he said. "We're all starting, and if you don't mind we'll get on as quickly as we can. About tomorrow. You shoot with us, of course."

"Delighted!" Duncombe answered. "Crosswell met me at the station."

Lord Runtun continued. "I'd drawn out a plan for the shoot, but it seems that Crosswell—old fool—hasn't got his harvest in from the two fields by Ketton's Gorse. What I wanted to ask you was if we might take your friends up to see the lake to the north end of the gorse. We can make our circuit then without a break."

"My dear fellow," Duncombe protested. "Was it worth while asking me such a thing? Of course you can."

"That's settled, then," Lord Runtun declared, turning back toward the omnibus. "Let me introduce you to my friends," he added, resting his hand upon the other's shoulder, "and then we'll be off."

Duncombe, in whose ears his friend's very was still ringing, pressed eagerly forward.

"This is my neighbor, Sir George Duncombe," Lord Runtun said, looking into the carriage. "Who will shoot with us tomorrow. Miss Fielding and Colonel Fielding, Lady Agravave and the Baron von Kotze."

Lady Agravave held out her hand. "Sir George and I are almost old friends," she said, with a somewhat unkind smile. "We were both at Castle Holkham last autumn."

Duncombe murmured something conventional as he bowed over his fingers.

His whole attention was riveted upon the tall, pale girl in the farther corner of the omnibus. Her acknowledgment of his introduction had been of the slightest, and her features were obscured by a white veil. She looked away from him at once and continued a whispered conversation with the white haired gentleman at her side.

Duncombe could think of no excuse for addressing her.

"I shall have the pleasure of meeting you all again tomorrow," he said, closing the door after Lord Runtun. "I won't keep you now. I know what the journey is down from town. Good night, Runtun."

"Good night, George. Ten o'clock sharp."

The carriage rolled off, and Duncombe returned to his own domain. Andrew was waiting for him impatiently by the gate.

"Well," he exclaimed eagerly, "you have seen her! Well?"

The man was trembling with excitement. There were drops of perspiration on his forehead. His voice sounded unnatural.

"I saw a young lady in the carriage," Duncombe answered, "or, rather, I did not see her, for she wore a veil, and she scarcely looked at me, but she was introduced to me as Miss Fielding, and her father was with her."

"Fielding! Fielding!" Andrew repeated. "Never mind that. What was she like? What color hair had she?"

"I told you that she kept her veil down," Duncombe repeated. "Her hair was a sort of deep red brown—what I could see of it. But, seriously, Andrew, what is the use of discussing her? One might as soon expect one of my housemaids to discover her with a brand new father, a brand new name and a guest at Runtun Place."

Andrew was silent for a moment. He touched his spectacles with a weary gesture and covered his eyes with his hand.

"Yes," he said, "I suppose you are right. I suppose I am a fool. But the voice!"

"The laughter of women," said Duncombe, "is music all the world over. One cannot differ very much from the other."

"You are quite wrong, George," Andrew said. "The voices of women vary like the thumb marks of criminals. There are no two attuned exactly alike. It is the receptive organs that are at fault. We who have lost one sense find others a little keener. The laughter of that girl, George, will you keep me a few days longer? Somehow I cannot bring myself to leave until I have heard her voice once more."

Duncombe laughed heartily. "My dear fellow," he said, "I shall bless your uncommonly sensitive ears if they keep you here with me for even an extra few days. You shall have your opportunity too. I always dine at Runtun House after our first shoot, and I know Runtun quite well enough to take you. You shall sit at the same table. Hello, what's this light winking up the drive?"

He strode a yard or so away and returned.

"A bicycle," he remarked. "One of the grooms been down to the village. I shall have to speak to Burdett in the morning. I will not have these fellows coming home at all sorts of times in the morning. Come along in, Andrew. Just a drink, eh? And a cigarette and then to bed. Runtun's keen on his bug, and they say that German John's a first shot. Can't let them have it all their own way."

"No fear of that," Andrew answered, stepping through the window. "I'll have the cigarette, please, but I don't care about any more whisky. The field mentioned your name only a few weeks ago as one of the finest shots at rising birds in the country, so I don't think you need fear the German."

"I ought to hold my own with the partridges," Duncombe admitted, helping himself from the siphon "but—Come in, come in!"

A servant entered with a telegram upon a silver salver.

"A boy has just brought this from Runtun, sir," he said.

Duncombe tore it open. He was expecting a message from his gunmaker, and he opened it without any particular interest, but as he read his whole manner changed. He held the sheet in front of him long enough to have read it a dozen times. He could not restrain the slight start—a half exclamation. Then his teeth came together. He remembered the servant and looked up.

"There will be no answer tonight, Murray," he said. "Give the boy a shilling and some supper. If he goes home by the Runtun gates, tell him to be sure and close them because of the deer."

The man departed. Duncombe laid the telegram upon the table. He felt that Andrew was waiting impatiently for him to speak.

"The telegram is from Spenser," Duncombe said.

"He has discovered something?"

"On the contrary," Duncombe answered, "he is asking me for information, and curious information too."

"What does he want to know?"

"The telegram," Duncombe said slowly, "is in French. He asks me to wire him at once the names of all the guests at Runtun Place."

Andrew struck the table a mighty blow with his clenched fist.

"I know it!" he cried. "It was her laugh, her voice! Phyllis Porton is there!"

Duncombe looked at his friend incredulously.

"My dear Andrew," he said, "be reasonable. The young lady and her father in that omnibus were introduced to me by Runtun himself as Mr. and Mrs. Fielding. They are going to his house as his guests. Naturally, therefore he knows all about them. Miss Porton, as you have told me more than once, is an orphan."

"Common sense won't even admit it as a matter of argument," Andrew said. "I know that quite well. But how do you account for Spenser's telegram?"

"Remember that he is a newspaper correspondent," Duncombe said. "He has many interests and many friends with whom he is constantly exchanging information. It is a coincidence. I admit. But the wildest flight of imagination could not make any more of it."

"You must be right," Andrew said quietly. "It all sounds and is so convincing. But I wish that I had not heard that laugh!"

CHAPTER XV.

DUNCOMBE leaned his gun up against a gate. A few yards away his host was talking to the servants who had brought down luncheon. The rest of the party were only just in sight a field or two off.

"Have a glass of sherry before lunch, George," his host asked, striding toward him.

"Nothing to drink, thanks. I'd like a cigarette if you have one."

Lord Runtun produced his case, and a servant brought them matches. They both leaned over the gate and watched the scattered little party slowly coming toward them.

"Who is your friend, Fielding?" Duncombe asked a little hastily.

"Follow from New York," Lord Runtun answered. "He's been very decent to my brother out there, and Archibald wrote and asked me to do all we could for them. The girl is very handsome. You'll see her at dinner tonight."

"Here for long?"

"No, unfortunately," Lord Runtun answered. "I had very hard work to get them to come at all. Closely has written them three or four times, I think, but they've always had engagements. They're only staying till Monday, I think. Very quiet, inoffensive sort of chap, Fielding, but the girl's a ripper. Hello! Here they are! I'll introduce you."

A groom had thrown open the gate of the field across which they were looking, and Lady Runtun from the right, a girl in a small black velvet dress, a brand new name and a guest at Runtun Place.

Andrew was silent for a moment. He touched his spectacles with a weary gesture and covered his eyes with his hand.

"Yes," he said, "I suppose you are right. I suppose I am a fool. But the voice!"

"The laughter of women," said Duncombe, "is music all the world over. One cannot differ very much from the other."

Industrial Demonstrations

Two years ago we introduced, along about the beginning of Spring, industrial exhibits. Last year at this time we had an Industrial Exposition, and this year on the days as stated, we purpose holding a series of Industrial Demonstrations—experts demonstrating and lecturing upon the lines of goods they represent.

We don't think a more INTERESTING ATTRACTION could be proposed than that of various things, relating to the household mostly, being shown from the practical side.

At the same time we shall make it a point to QUOTE SPECIAL PRICES ON NEWEST SPRING GOODS.

We invite every reader of this paper to make a special visit to the city to witness these demonstrations, and say very frankly that the expenses of their trip can be more than saved.

Enrique Creel

His Excellency Enrique Creel, who has been recently sent by President Porfirio Diaz to Mexico as its ambassador to the United States, is a native of the Province of Chihuahua, Mexico. He is a man of high culture and speaks several languages with fluency. General Creel married a daughter of General Luis Terrazas, who is considered one of the richest men in Mexico. His new Mexican Ambassador is a man in poverty, but his every word attracted the attention of the rich mine owners of Chihuahua, with the result that he rapidly amassed wealth, until he is only considered several times a millionaire.

ing American.

"Just in time, aren't we?" Lady Runtun remarked as she brought the door to a standstill. "Help me down, Jack, and look after Miss Fielding, Sir George. By the bye, have you two met yet?"

Duncombe bowed—he was bareheaded—and held out his hands.

"I saw Miss Fielding for a moment last night," he said, "or, rather, I didn't see her. We were introduced, however. What do you think of our maligned English weather, Miss Fielding?" he asked.

She raised her veil and looked at him deliberately. He had been prepared for this meeting, and yet it was with difficulty that he restrained from a start.

The likeness to the photograph, which even at that moment was in his pocket, was wonderful. She looked a little older perhaps. There were shadows in her face of which there were no traces in the picture. And yet the likeness was wonderful.

Sore Throat Wisdom. If every mother could realize the real danger that lurks behind every case of sore throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it.

Every family physician can verify the statement that it is a positive fact that every child with sore throat is in immediate danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsillitis or Diphtheria, and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Think of it!

Incisions or outward application of medicines do not and cannot cure the ailment, though they may offer temporary relief. Neither can you cure sore throat with a cough syrup or a cold cure.

To cure, you must get at the seat of the disease, removing the cause. Nothing does that so quickly, safely and surely as TONSILINE. A single dose of TONSILINE taken upon the first appearance of sore throat may save long weeks of sickness, great expense, worry, even death. TONSILINE is the attack in time.

Use a little sore throat wisdom and buy a bottle of TONSILINE today. You may need it tomorrow.

TONSILINE is the standard sore throat remedy—best known and most effective and most used. Look for the long necked bottle with the 25 or 50 cent sized bottle when you go to the drug store to get it.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. E. W. Grove, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of out-of-the-way remedies for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into a composition of his widely celebrated remedies. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has preserved his name from among recent nostrums of doubtful merit, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Grove has shown himself a champion of open competition, and he is no longer afraid to subject them to the public scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Grove's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomachs, pituitary humor, indigestion, biliousness, whenever located, have printed upon it in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a similar book has been compiled from numerous prescriptions of medicine, embracing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient used in Dr. Grove's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter to Dr. E. W. Grove, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book you will learn that Dr. Grove's medicines contain no alcohol, no narcotics, no mineral acids, no poisons, no injurious agents, and that they are made from natural medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Grove's Favorite Prescription for women, and his other medicines, are the most precious and rarest of the Indian's treasures for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicines in the world is the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Young men, however, who are afflicted with "Green-Wood," our knowledge of the value of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for restoring all the vital functions, correcting displacements, as Piles, Hemorrhoids, and Stricture, and overcoming painful periods, toning up the system and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in "medicines."

Attention and keep the bowels regular, gives relief in all cases, and also leads to discovery of the cause, and the cure of the disease. By their diet and combined action on the liver and kidneys, Dr. E. W. Grove's Kidney-Liver Pills, and thoroughly out all diseases of these internal organs.
